Date of death July 14, 1943

Helen Jackson, fourteen years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson of Deer River fish hatchery, was drowned in Deer River at the High Rollway about 21/2 mile above Cordova. The girl decided to ride her bicycle to the river for a swim. Not conscious of the risk she was taking, she got into an eddy which bore her to a deep hole. Her mother and sister, Mrs. Ethel Forsyth, arrived at the river's edge to witness her coming up for the last time. Her sister waded out a little ways, but knowing of the deep hole, realized she was powerless to be of any assistance.

The mother then went to the residence of Mrs. Edward Bowen, some distance away, to get help. Ray Bowen, 18, who returned with her, rescued the body, upon which artificial respiration was tried for about an hour without success. Dr. Donald Holdcroft, of Havelock, who was called, decided an inquest was unnecessary.

Helen is survived by her sorrowing parents; two brothers, Lloyd of Simcoe and Nagel at home; and two sisters, Mrs. Ethel Forsyth of Simcoe and Mrs. Harry Barrons of Cordova. The remains were taken to Normandale for burial, Rev. W.E. McMillen, rector of Simcoe, officiating.

ARTHUR JUDD

Word was received in Stirling last Friday morning of the death in Winnipeg of Arthur Judd. Mr. Judd spent his boyhood in Stirling and as a youth learned the printing trade with Mr. John Thompson, founder of the News-Argus and Mr. Jas. Currie. At the age of 18 he went to Winnipeg and joined the mechanical staff of the Manitoba Free Press, where he remained for nearly forty years. For 25 years he was foreman of the plant and when because of ill health he was forced virtually to retire a few years ago, the Free Press kept him on their staff as a regular fully paid employee. His work at the News-Argus and with the Free Press, were the only positions he ever held, a remarkable record in these days of much moving and change.

Old residents of Stirling still remember him for his sunny disposition, an aspect of his character that remained with him to the end. He married an Ontario girl, Miss Ida Caldwell, in Winnipeg about 25 years ago and she survives him. Misses Mary and Louisa Judd and Mr. Alex Judd of Stirling are sisters and brother. The remains were interred at Winnipeg on Monday.
